Solomon Dedicates the Temple

Sunday School Lesson for Dec. 13, 1908
Specially Arranged for This Paper

LESSON TEXT.—1 Kings 8:1-11. Memory verses, 10, 11.
GOLDEN TEXT.—"I was glad when they said unto me, let us go into the house of the Lord."—Psalm 122:1.

THE TEMPLE.—The temple was begun in the fourth year of Solomon's reign, B. C. 1022, and completed seven years later, B. C. 1015, according to the Assyrian Canon about 45 years later. The dedication was in Solomon's twelfth year.

CONTEMPORARY HISTORY.—The kingdom was now at its largest extent, from the Lebanon mountains to the Red Sea, from the Mediterranean to the Syrian desert on the east, Tyre flourishing under King Hiram. The Sabean kingdom of Yemen, the queen of which came to see Solomon. Commerce extended to Europe, Africa and India.

Comment and Suggestive Thought.
The Temple.—The situation was on the eastern hill of Jerusalem, called sometimes Mount Moriah, overlooking the valley of the Kidron and the Mount of Olives.

Modern authorities are inclined to think that the temple platform was a part of Mount Zion; and that Zion was the name of the eastern hill of Jerusalem, and not of the western hill, as has been the general opinion.

"The rugged top of Moriah was leveled with immense labor; its sides, which to the east and south were precipitous, were faced with a wall of stone, built up perpendicular from the bottom of the valley, so as to appear to those who looked down of most terrifying height—a work of prodigious skill and labor, as the immense stones were strongly mortised together and wedged into the rock."—Milman.

The platform, according to Josephus, was square, three-quarters of a mile in circuit (Wars, 5:5, 2), in the time of Herod, but he also says that Herod doubled the original inclosure. "Probably, therefore, the platform constructed by Solomon's engineers was an area of about 12 acres, or a quadrangle of 900 by 600 feet."—James Sims.

"Alone and isolated in its grandeur stood the Temple Mount. Terrace upon terrace its courts rose, till high above the city, within the inclosure of marble cloisters, the temple itself stood out, a mass of snowy marble and of gold, glittering in the sunlight against the half encircling green background of Olivet. . . . Nor has there been in ancient or modern times a sacred building equal to the temple, whether for situation or magnificence."—Edersheim.

The Size and Plan of the Temple.—"The best model of the temple I have ever seen," declares Dr. P. N. Peloubet, "is the one sent from England to Mr. Dwight L. Moody, and placed in his school at Northfield, Mass. It is said to have cost $3,000. A similar one belonged to Mr. Thomas Newberry, Alexander Villa, Weston Super-Mare, England."

Counting a cubit as 18 inches, the main building was as follows: Porch, 30 feet broad, 15 feet deep, 180 feet high; holy place, 60 feet long, 30 feet wide, 30 feet high; holy of holies, 30 feet long, 30 feet wide, 30 feet high; chambers, 15 feet wide on the two sides and rear.

In front of the porch were two great pillars.

The whole was situated according to the points of the compass, the front entrance being toward the east.

The Courts.—There were two courts (2 Chron. 33:5). The outer court was surrounded by a wall partly of stone, partly of cedar; on the eastern border was a cloister or colonnade. This court was adorned with trees, and free to all the people. Within this quadrangle was a smaller court, the court of the priests, on the highest ridge of the hill inclosing the temple, and the great brazen altar, and brazen sea, and the lavers.

In the inner court were the great brazen altar of sacrifice, 15 feet high and 30 feet square, in sight of all the worshipers of the outer court, and the molten or brazen sea supported by 12 huge oxen, each 7½ feet high.

V. 10. "The cloud filled the house of the Lord." The article before cloud denotes that it was the well-known cloud which betokened the divine presence. "The cloud was the veil that hid (V. 11) 'the glory of the Lord,' for that glory was too bright to be seen by mortal eyes. This was the same as the pillar of cloud and of fire that guided the people through the wilderness, which had rested on the tabernacle on the day it was dedicated (Ex. 40:34), 'and had apparently been specially displayed at certain junctures in the history of Israel' (Num. 12:5, 10; 16:42; Deut. 31:15). It was thus the acknowledged symbol of God's presence, and as such was a visible sign that he now accepted the temple, as he had formerly accepted the tabernacle, as his shrine and dwelling place."

The Dedication Services.

7. Closing address (1 Kings 8:54-61), standing.—Prof. Willis J. Beecher.
